

Our call to action: The current 'white, bureaucratic' way of running systems is not working for our First Nations people. There is a call to define and build systems from a First Nations' way of being and doing if there is to be equity in Logan.

Our story of the past is about struggle and systemic racism

Our story of now is that we are ready to go- there is a commitment to putting First Nations first

Our story of the future is all of us working collectively to change systems through cultural ways of being and doing.

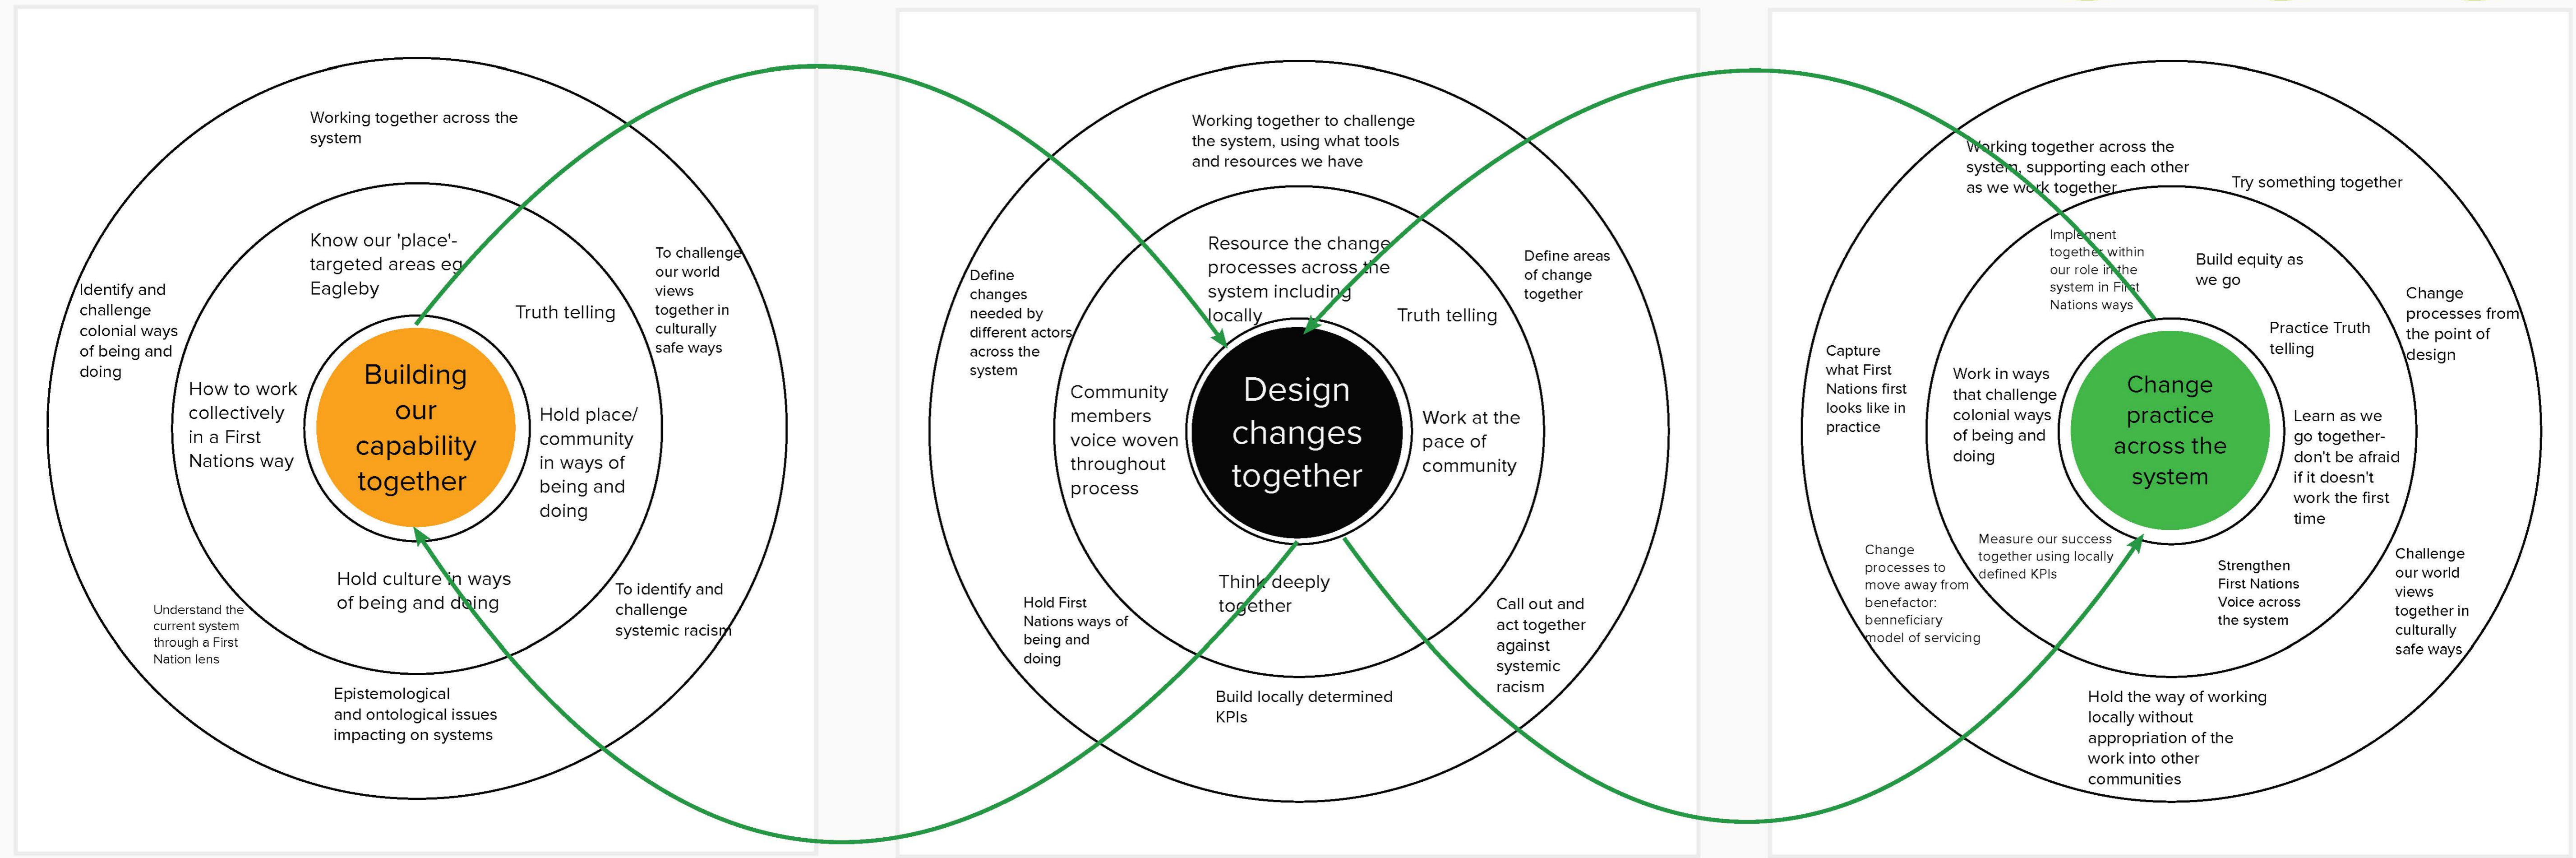

Systems we are and can work on together

Resourcing is needed to do this work

How we can come together to build new systems work with us so the system is changed so our families are strengthened in our place and in our culture
